

Founder's Personal Statement

There is a tremendous need for orphanages in Guatemala. My introduction to Guatemalan life began when I lived and worked at Hogar Miguel Magone for two weeks in May 2006.

There are over 370,000 orphans in Guatemala, Central America. These orphans need a place to sleep, live, eat and feel safe. The Guatemalan government does not support the approximately 215 orphanages in Guatemala. It is you, private citizens, businesses, corporate entities and non-profit groups that support & fund the orphanages to give these children a safe, healthy environment in which to thrive. The citizens of Guatemala have been struggling to recover after their civil war ended in 1996. 80% of the population of Guatemala lives below poverty level. Many of them have incomes of about $2 a day. How can you support your family and your children with so little money, much less help out the many orphanages that already exist?

That's where we come in, you and I. It is so easy to give a little and give of yourself. America's generosity & caring strengthens the human ties that bind country to country. This project is an example of that in action. Additionally, many Europeans, Canadians and others around the world come to the orphanage to work as well as help with donations, food and clothing. It's a collective effort.

The children did not ask to be born in poverty, or abandoned on the streets.
Many have been abused and need a safe haven, a safe home where they can be children.
This home is a place where they learn to play.
This is where they learn values and rules.
This is where these children slowly forget the nightmarish lives that they have had.

The budget of the orphanage suffered a serious blow when a volunteer organization withdrew their support of the orphanage in March 2007. That organization was the reason I was in Guatemala for the first time as a volunteer in May 2006. Now they will no longer send volunteers to the orphanage, which also means that the 'pay for the privilege of working' funds are gone. Zip... no more. No warning, no notice, just gone.

Now it's up to us to dig in our pockets and our hearts to see what we can do to help others. So many of us are truly blessed in our lives and we need to give back. We need to share. And more importantly, we need to care. Caring for others fills your heart and gives you purpose and direction in your life.

Please support our orphanage and our boys and girls. And perhaps you'll be a little more like me - instead of having one son, you'll have 65 or 70 sons and daughters!

Sincerely,

Diane Springer

CONCERNED CITIZEN

TO:

Give Orphans Hope!

Hogar Miguel Magone is an orphanage just outside Guatemala City, Guatemala.

Approximately 65-70 boys and girls live at the home located in the tiny village of El Aguacate. These children might be victims of abuse, extreme poverty (which results in relinquishing the children to the court system), they may be street kids or true orphans with no family.

The Guatemalan government does not provide any assistance to the many orphanages in Guatemala. The orphanages need our help to provide food, shelter, love, attention, role models and educational opportunities to the children of Guatemala.

The initial goals of Orphan's Hope Project are:

- To support the orphanage by providing new goods and clothing.
- To do continual fundraising to sustain budget.
- To provide volunteer opportunities for the citizens of the world to come live and work with the children.
- To improve the health and nutrition of the children.
- To improve the conditions of the home by adding new programs and teachers.
- To educate the children and give them practical job skills.

As our foundation grows, we hope to branch out and support other orphanages in Guatemala.
